

Says

What have we heard them say?
What can we imagine them saying?

Publishers spend a ton of time choosing a book cover—because, well, that’s how the book’s going to be judged.

The same applies to your resume: a good resume design will get recruiters hooked and almost forces them to give it more attention.

- The best resume design templates you’ll ever find.
- Inspiring ideas for your creative, modern, professional, and simple resume design.
- A step-by-step guide on designing a resume that wins you your dream job.

Thinks

What are their wants, needs, hopes, and dreams?
What other thoughts might influence their behavior?

Below is a list of really cool resume designs you can create or take inspiration from.

This stylish template uses color very subtly to highlight each resume section. The progress bars indicate your mastery of software and language skills.

It’s a great choice for candidates who want their abilities to stand out from the rest.

Designing a Resume/cv

Recruiters have to review hundreds of resumes every day. They’re tired of looking at heaps of information crammed into as little space as possible.

Don’t go for single-line spacing unless you want your resume to look like yellow pages. Set the spacing for 1.15 or 1.5.

Check them out and see what makes them so eye-catching.

Below’s a list of really cool resume designs you can create or take inspiration from.

Check them out and see what makes them so eye-catching.

By the way, if you are a graphic design pro and want to see the best tips on how to make a resume that outperforms 9 out of 10 others, here’s a guide just for you:

Does

What behavior have we observed?
What can we imagine them doing?

Feels

What are their fears, frustrations, and anxieties?
What other feelings might influence their behavior?

See an example

TAKE A

PLEDGE TO SEGREGATE